The Goose & Turrets Bed & Breakfast, located in the seaside village of Montara, California, on the San Mateo County coast, offers a quick getaway from San Francisco and Silicon Valley. This slow lane refuge pampers fast lane folks by paying close attention to both Bs: comfortable Beds and bountiful Breakfasts.

The historic building, constructed around 1907, and its quiet gardens are only 20 minutes from San Francisco airport and 30 minutes south of downtown San Francisco. Best of all, a pleasant half-mile walk takes you to a clean sandy beach where harbor seals stare back at the occasional beachcomber.

Every afternoon at 4:30, tea and goodies appear in the spacious common area. Tea is a good time to meet and talk with fellow guests and the hosts -- who can also help with dinner choices. By the way - this is not "high tea," that's for children & nannies. We'll explain when you are here.

Fires in the fireplace when it's foggy dispose guests to choose a book to read or music to play (either themselves on the piano or by others on the CD-tape deck).

Sunny days, guests enjoy bocce ball, lying in the hammock, sitting in the genuine Appalachian courting swing, watching birds and smelling the roses and jasmine - all to the background sounds of splashing fountains. Astoundingly, no biting insects will join you.

Breakfast/Tea Time

Sumptuous Breakfasts

The Goose & Turrets is dedicated to serving four courses of healthy breakfast comprising something guests probably wouldn't cook for themselves. Every morning we start out with Ethiopian Harrar coffee (regular or decaf - always freshly ground and brewed); then may come orange juice, melon and prosciutto, hot oatmeal, Southwest corn pancakes with sour cream and salsa, and mandarin orange sherbet and much, much more!

Tea Time

The Goose & Turrets thinks afternoon tea is of great importance for one's spirits. Every afternoon at 4:30, the tea cart appears in the common room. It is laden with freshly brewed tea, a savoury, and a sweet. This might be:
